Thank you for the video. I have the Martha Stewart looming set but the round one is 28 instead of what the videos have for 24. This is my first item I did, never have done knitting crocheting or looming but it was very easy to follow esp. for a guy!! If the radius is smaller then the size of the slipper would be smaller as well, is that a good theory? I want to make these for my mom who is 84 and has tiny feet, any suggestions? Also the set I have are all square except for the one I mentioned that has 56 peg holes (28 at 1/2). Can I do this slipper with a square loom?

The best person to answer your questions is Tuteate, the producer of this loom knitting video but I will tell you what others have done. For size 10 slipper 14 rows were done, for a child size 5 and did 10 rows, then followed the rest of directions. So you may want to experiment with the number rows to get the perfect size for your mom. I hope this helps.
